

Anna & Patrick

Anna: Hey so listen, about last night. Do you know if Maddie heard?

Patrick: Haven't talked to her. But she takes her hearing aids out at night, so...

Anna: Oh, perfect, OK, can we just keep that between you and I then? I don't really want her to think she's got a freak living in the basement.

Patrick: OK.

Anna: Sorry if I scared you.

Patrick: You sure your ex didn't come back?

Anna: Doubt it. It was probably me. New environments can throw me off.

Patrick: What, what do you mean?

Anna: Last time I stayed in a hotel, I woke up on the balcony. Security found me dropping miniature soaps on people's heads.

Patrick: Hilarious. You sleepwalk?

Anna: Yea, been to a specialist, even spent some time in a sleep lab.

Patrick: Sleep lab, what's that?

Anna: Uhh...they hook you up to all these machines and monitor your sleep. With cameras and everything.

Patrick: God, what was that like?

Anna: Stressful. Gave me nightmares.

Patrick: I can imagine.

Anna: But don't worry, I went to the doctor and I'm taking some pills now so...I'm not gonna kill you in your sleep or anything.

Patrick: Thanks.

Anna: Anyway, sorry about the window.

Patrick: No, no, don't worry about it. I found a storm window in the garage, replaced it with that. And I put up curtains, cleaned. Everything's fine.

Anna: What?

Patrick: Yeah.

Anna: Wait, sorry, you cleaned my place?

Patrick: Yeah. Well, there was glass all over. And you said you wanted to just snap your fingers and it would all be clean, so...

Anna: How'd you get in?

Patrick: My key.

Anna: What?

Patrick: I'm the caretaker, so...

Anna: That's a complete invasion of privacy. I never asked you to do that. You can't just come into my place whenever you want. You had no right to do that.

Patrick: Sorry, sorry, I just...OK, you're right, that wasn't OK. I shouldn't have done that. I'm totally sorry. It'll never happen again.

Anna: Good.

Patrick: I hope this doesn't...make things weird. You just said you needed curtains, you said the place wasn't clean. I wanted to do something nice. Seemed you could, you know, use something nice.